UK Outlook for Thursday 8 Apr 2021 to Thursday 22 Apr 2021:
At the start of this period, generally settled conditions are expected for most, although with the potential for more unsettled and changeable conditions across northwestern areas. Overall, there is a reasonable signal for generally settled weather for most through this period with drier than average and brighter conditions prevailing and areas away from the far northwest of the country receiving below average rainfall. Thereafter the signals become weaker, with climatological conditions more likely (settled in the south, more unsettled in the north). Temperatures are likely to be at or above average, with any cooler interludes likely to be short-lived, and mostly across the north.
